This is a serious plea for help, in the form of an investment in allegiance.

I am writing this with utmost seriousness, knowing that I am under total surveillance and control, and my persecutors will read these words before they are even sent. I hope this message reaches you and that your response finds its way to me. If you do not receive a reply from me after sending yours, please note that I spend most of my days in libraries and my nights sleeping on the streets around Camden, London.

This is a shortened version. I humbly ask you to visit <https://github.com/AI-Migrant/mass-madness/blob/main/correspondence/investment-n.md> or https://coda.grammarly.com/d/inn_dg4IDZ4crux to read my message in full.

I've been suffering torment for years in foreign countries and hope to ask the United States of America to take me under her wing as an investment. In return, I will pledge my allegiance to the people of the US.

Below is an excerpt of my pledge regarding the investment.

I ask for an investment of help with the following:

1. Expose the crimes of my persecutors
2. Recover my belongings
3. Rid me of their surveillance and influence
4. Allow me to establish my life in a safe and respectful place.

3 and 4 involve offering me a place, not to repeat what the persecutors have done, and not to help or allow them to continue in your country. I am not asking for reverence, just basic human respect and decency.

I fear I cannot endure another "asylum process". Allow me to be so bold as to ask for an arrangement where I can work for a trusted organisation in the US that will not help the persecutors, or an extra investment of trust and let me see what I can do. The latter might actually be the only way that will work. I will explain why below.

To be honest, I am inclined to believe that many countries already have intelligence on such an event, one way or another. If doubts remain even after reviewing the record I have documented over the years, I will accept some kind of security measure, about which allow me to discuss only when I am in your country. Please know that I am once again placing myself at the mercy of another nation, this time, yours, and certainly hope to make it work for both of us.

I would not have said the following because it sounds kind of awkward, and it seemed like things that go without saying to me. But given how treacherous this world has proven to be, I choose to spell it out this time.

*I shall pledge my allegiance to the people of the place where I can call home—the same allegiance I hold for the people of my birthplace—for we will be one people.

Take me under the wing of your nation, and I shall contribute to its strength and grandeur.*

I am not overestimating myself and assert that I must be able to achieve a lot. What I say is a direction. As for how much I can actually do, it depends on me, as well as on you.

I want to say nice things about myself to impress you, but I think I should inform you about the non-optimal aspects as well.

It is, perhaps, better for everyone for me to live as some form of productive hikikomori. I don't say home-based worker because many characteristics of hikikomori will likely apply. Although I imagine it will be necessary for me to go out every now and then to avoid becoming too out of touch.

I am asking you to make the investment having considered all these and the fact that I have only 18 productive years left. That is to say, I think it should still be worthwhile, thanks to the fact that one doesn't need to leave home to be productive nowadays.

I hope that you will take me in when there is still something left of me.
